EDITOR IN DISTRESS

What's up? I've been meaning to mention something the last few weeks, but I keep forgetting. If you read Metro ANE online, we have online links setup all through the issue. See The Love Ranch ad to your left? Click it. Whoa, it takes you to the website. Pretty cool huh. Russell, production manager and computer nerd, also set the pages up so you can click the links in the articles. Plus in the escort section, there's a link for a free virtual lap dance. Sorry, you can't click on the print paper and make a stripper appear. If you're at a club, you can hold up some green and I bet you'll have a dancer getting naked then. We also have a myspace (<http://www.myspace.com/metroane>) and a twitter account, which I don't like and plan to delete.

Fans of heavy metal and punk should head out to the Fall Out Lounge every Monday for Mayhem Mondays with DJ's Grind Master Stef and Mecoseco. There are $2 Shiners and PBR's, plus $3 rum and cokes. The destruction starts at 10pm and the Fall Out Lounge is located at 835 Exposition, Dallas.

Judas Priest and White Snake at Nokia Theater Thursday. Hopefully see some naked dancers afterward!

Contributing writer Zamra models for the Dr. Sketchy Saturday at 9pm and then performs with her burlesque troupe, Deviant Dolls Burlesque, later that evening at the Boiler Room. You can get more info from Vivienne's column on page 7.

Tuesday is the 80's party at The Lodge. I can't wait. Still trying decide how to dress up which I'm limited to since I have long hair and a beard. Serpico? Kurt Russell in The Thing? Got any ideas.

Oh, I can't forget to mention UFC 101 this past Saturday and also WEC. I thought most of the pay per view was boring, but I did win a bet after Anderson Silva knocked out former Light heavyweight Champion Forrest Griffin. I figured Anderson would win, but not within the first round. Poor Kenny Florian. Once again defeated in his bid to Lightweight Champion of the UFC. Now, WEC the next day had some good fights and I'm shocked that Brian Bowles knocked out my favorite Miguel Torres.

I have to say, I'm angered with lots of this health care talk on the radio and TV. This is an entertainment magazine, so I'm not telling or preaching my views, but please read the facts at <http://www.whitehouse.gov/realitycheck/>. Don't listen to the morning DJ or evening shock jock. They're there to entertain not educate, just like us here. -Gil Tha Thrill

Saturday, Nomad Recording Studios are doing their 3rd annual showcase featuring a slew of great bands at Poor David's Pub, 1313 S. Lamar.

Michael Jackson: The Trial and Triumph of The King of Pop is a documentary treatment of director/reporter, Pearl Jr. and her coverage of the Michael Jackson molestation trial. Very low-budget, but still fascinating if not only for the loonies that show up to stand outside and either defend or malign Jackson. Pearl Jr.'s presentation is down home, and sometimes humorous as she comments on the chaos around her. There are a lot of celebrity cameos wishing Jackson well, including Kanye West, Ashford & Simpson, Mo-Nique and even Billy Gibbons of ZZ Top. Included is a breakdown of the Sony conspiracy theory, a trip to the gates of MJ's ranch, and interviews with attorney Tom Mesereau, author Aphrodite Jones (who, while reporting on the case, was initially was convinced of his guilt and labeled "the most hated reporter covering the trial" who then changed her mind to find him innocent and write a book about it). You can check it out on cable and internet Video-on-Demand (VOD) platforms across North American in up to 50 million homes via over 100 operators and digital destinations are offering the film including, Apple iTunes, Amazon VOD, Charter, Comcast, Time Warner Cable, and Verizon FiOS. And as always, thanx to Clint at MVD for keepin' the good stuff coming!

MICHAEL JACKSON IMPERSONATOR EDWARD MOSS TO PERFORM AT THE LODGE ON AUGUST 18

Edward Moss, the world's leading Michael Jackson impersonator, will make his first visit to Dallas since the singer's passing to host The Lodge's "Back to the '80s" VIP Party on Tuesday, August 18.

Moss has won international acclaim for his remarkable resemblance to Michael Jackson and his performing skills emulating the late pop star at his zenith. He has toured the world, appeared in movies and television shows, and portrayed the legendary entertainer in the E! network's daily re-enactment of Jackson's 2005 trial in California.

"When we planned our August VIP party around an '80s theme, Edward was the obvious choice to capture the joy and excitement of those days," said Lodge CEO Dawn Rizos. "After Michael Jackson's tragic passing, this also seemed like a great way to pay tribute to a fantastic artist."

Moss will host the VIP party from 6-9 p.m. and perform on The Lodge's main stage, as well as meet fans throughout the day. The Lodge VIP parties include drink specials, a lavish buffet and special performances by Lodge entertainers.

The Lodge was named the best gentlemen's club in America by Exotic Dancer magazine in 2008 and has been nominated for the honor again this year. It is located at 10530 Spangler Road, just off Northwest Highway, one mile west of I-35E.

Adult Film Star Jazmine Cashmere Performs At Club Onyx Wednesday, August 12

Illinois native Jazmine Cashmere was born on April 17, 1984. After two years of lingerie modeling, dancing in strip clubs, and occasional escorting, Jazmine found a website for adult industry jobs when she was 20 years old. Only a week after posting her profile, she found herself being flown to Las Vegas to work at the AVN Awards. Jazmine loved this introduction to the world of porn so much that she never looked back. You, however, are going to love looking at her back – as in "baby got..." Jazmine's round ass is one of her most prized features, and her fans would probably agree that it deserves to be billed on its own in all her features. It's appropriate that she loves putting that ass to use in anal scenes and big-butt features.

See her live at Club Onyx this Wednesday, August 12. Two shows! The Party starts at 7pm. Club Onyx, 10557 Wire Way, Dallas

Richard Hunter hosts The Richard Hunter Show weekday afternoons 4-6 on AM 1360 Dallas.

As my wife and I get closer to adopting one of the dogs that were rescued from the despicable Michael Vick's dog fighting compound, I am beginning to relate to those who take a green approach to child recycling (otherwise known as "adoption"). As I wait for the results of my state and federal criminal background checks, I wonder if there is anything that I don't remember about my misspent youth. I am really wondering if there is anything that I don't know about my wife's misspent youth. Three personal references and a home visit later, we are getting ever closer to making the pilgrimage to Utah to meet the dog orphans. It's no wonder then that a headline touting results of a recent study caught my eye.

According to research presented this past week at the American Psychological Association's annual gathering, dogs possess the intelligence of an average two year old. Stanley Coren, a professor at the University of British Columbia and a leading dog behavior researcher, says that dogs understand an average of 165 words and can count to about five. I started making a list of the words that I knew for sure that my dog knew. Sit, no, walk, mail...I suddenly realized that I have no idea which of the roughly 160 words that I know are recognizable to my dog. Not that we have secrets, but I have been very candid with him in the past, perhaps not knowing the depth of his comprehension as it might relate to my potential embarrassment. I'm wondering what he knows, and perhaps more importantly, what he remembers.

I really don't have a hard time believing the study's findings. To go even further, I would love to know how much of a head start the dog has his infantile counterpart when they are both just weeks out of the womb. I damn sure know it didn't take my Pumpkin long to grasp the concept of communicating to me when they needed to be let outside to relieve themselves. Last time I was around a two year old, they were still just sitting in their pants, and they didn't seem to have the courtesy to run around in a circle to let you know that it was coming.

Mealtime? That's another instant canine advantage. They may sit by their bowl with anticipation if they know that it's feeding time, but they never scream and cry as if their next meal is not guaranteed. Pavlov himself would've rang that bell until his arm fell off if he hoped to have a baby coming running in response.

Which brings me to my next advantage that the dog enjoys: Mobility. Dogs are crawling before they can even see where they are going. Kids allow time for their parents' camcorders to go out of warranty before they dare to move in any one direction. Long after your dog is setting the pace for both of you on his leash, your kid has succeeding in insuring that one of your arms has long since become more developed than the other from carrying them around everywhere.

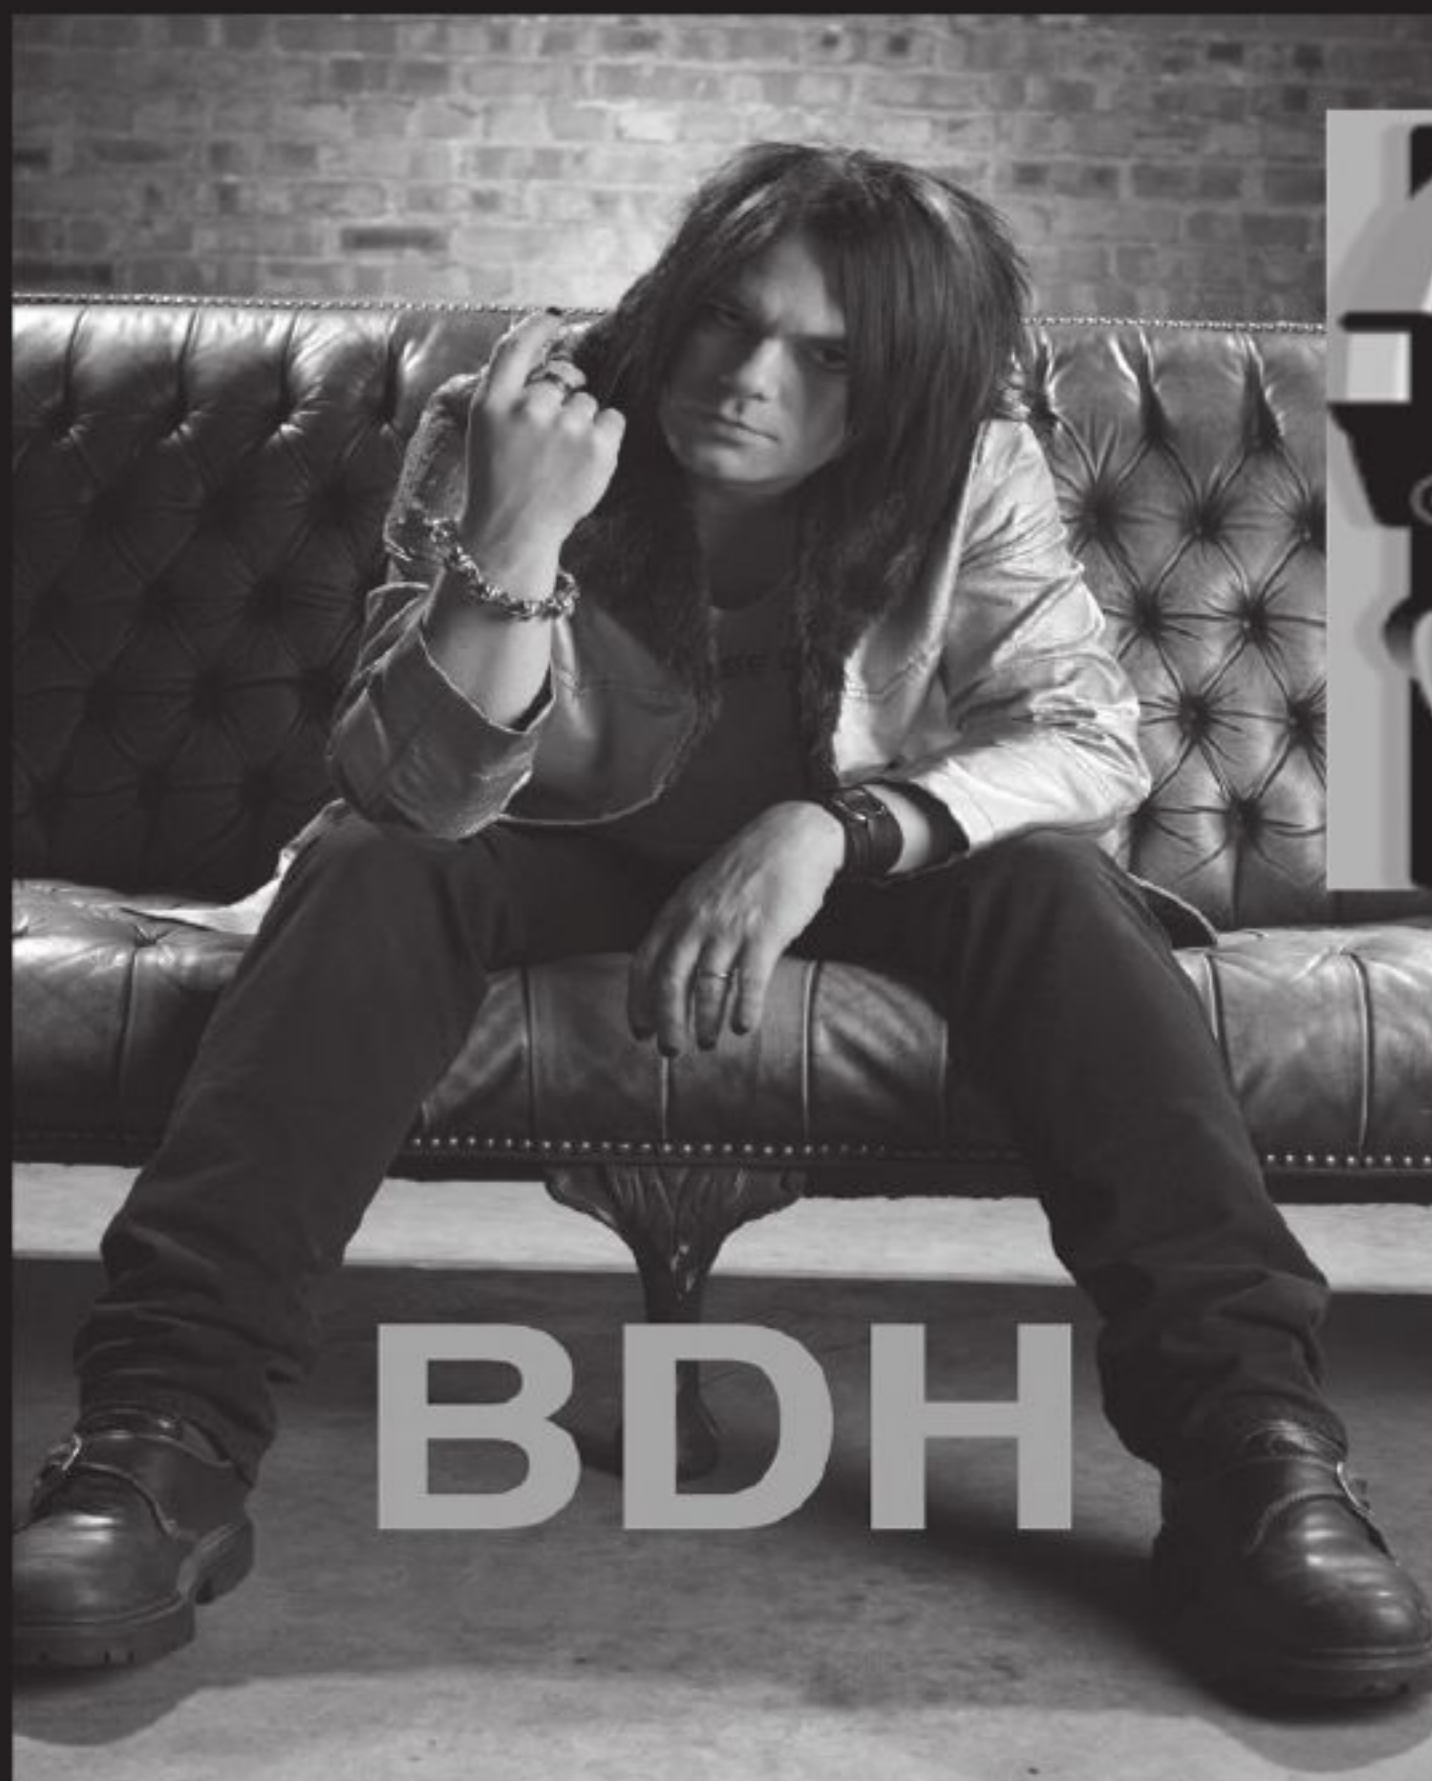

None of these canine advantages over children may be as important though as the following concept: That of understanding "no". A simple one-word command, meant to keep one's snout out of the trash and out of the chocolate. Try telling that to your six month old and see where that gets you. Now wait six months and try the same thing on your kid's first birthday. By the time your dog turns one, "no" hasn't been an abstract concept for quite some time.

Eventually, the kid will surpass the dog's intelligence level, if you end up being so lucky. That's when they gain enough comprehension to challenge your rule. When it gets too much for you, blow off some steam with your dog. He'll come the first time that you call.

I'm not one to shy away from a little genetic engineering. Let's get these kids preloaded with some deductive reasoning, and maybe a basic pre-installed hygiene package. That, or make it easier to adopt a polite, reasonable 14 year old. I've already cleared the background check.

AIN'T NOTHIN' BUT A G-STRING

This weeks' burlesque revues are all about the naughty, folks - and I do mean naughty! If you like your burlesque a little risqué... with some sideshow action goin' on, then Saturday the 15th is all for you.

Come start your night off at the first session of Dr. Sketchy's in Denton, where myself and the crazy E. Pax will be hosting Zamra of the Deviant Dolls Burlesque. Dr. Sketchy's (www.drsketchy.com) is the little Brooklyn event that became a movement. Founded in 2005 by artist Molly Crabapple, Dr. Sketchy's asked a simple question, "Why can't drawing naked people be sexy?" The basic principle is to bring a sketchpad, drawing utensils, and 10 bucks to get in. We comb North Texas to find the most beautiful burlesque dancers, daring derby girls, and crazy contortionists. Then, we let you draw them for three hours. Interspersed with posing are comedy skits and ridiculous drawing contests (best left handed drawing? Best incorporation of a woodland animal?) where you can win prizes. If you don't know Zamra, she is also a contributor to Metro and a fetish model/burlesque performer whom we have captured for a few hours for your drawing delight! After our affair, head on over to the Boiler Room in Denton for some more boobs (Deviant Dolls Burlesque, HOT!), booze, and some sideshow action with Circus Della Morte! Dr. Sketchy's will kick off at 6 pm at Art Six, 424 Bryan Street in Denton, and the Dolls will go on at the Boiler Room around 10:30.

Also coming up - Those Lollie Bombs are at it again! Their bimonthly show at the Pocket Sandwich Theater will be Aug. 21 and 22. These shows will be a little different, in that portions of the proceeds are going to fund 3 runners in the Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure! So grab your tickets early and not only get to see some boobs, but help to save some as well! Call the Pocket directly at (214) 821-1860, and the Lollies ask that you wear some pink (even you fellas!)

Also be watching the Lady Divina camp - they've got some MAJOR shows in the works, including one that myself and Zamra will be performing in on Sept. 19th at the Lakewood Theater! Visit www.ladivinaburlesque.com for more info.

Cheers!

METRO ANE SPORTS

BARKIN' OUT LOUD

by Pat "Two Dogs" Snow

through the same mental picture, THIS is where the collaboration of coach and player maximize. When you think about it, it's where just about any kind of team effort is most effective, regardless of it being a sport or a business. Obviously it's a lot harder than people think.

The coach has to know what the skill level and capability of each player on the team is. He then has to devise a game plan against the opponents based upon what his guys can do. That's all fine and dandy as a mental exercise, but on game day someone has to carry out the plan. It helps when you have a QB whose thinking like the coach.

The prime example would certainly be QB Peyton Manning of the Colts with his Offensive Coordinator, Tom Moore. Well, the League said Moore had to retire but allowed him to come back as a consultant doing anything he wanted, so he does the same job. Now that's beyond sorta dumb, that's ridiculous, but I'm straying.

Moore and Manning know the system and each games "rough" plan. Both view the active game through the same eyes as far as what is in their offensive arsenal and what to use against the defenses against them. Even when the Colts were decimated with injuries and they lost, they kept the games close and it was largely due to this.

NFL quarterbacks all have the next play sent to them and they all can audible from the line after looking at the defense. Except Manning. Moore only sends suggestions for Peyton to consider. Suggestions? You got it. Peyton runs the offensive game. He and Moore are so much in tune on the whole game that they can do this. It's also what makes their version of the no huddle possible.

Take Cowboys QB Tony Romo. This is his third full season and is about where the results of layered on learning should really start showing itself on the field. He knows what the plays are. He knows where all the offensive players are supposed to be during each play. He is reading defenses a hell'uva lot better. And he's now understanding more and more of Offensive Coordinator Jason Garrett's system and game planning. This season what we should be watching for is how well Romo and Garrett are thinking and responding together, that's how we'll see any progress.

The point here is that when the coach and player at whatever position are viewing the job at hand from the same eyes, THAT is where the higher levels of efficiency are reached.

And if you turn around and look down the trail behind you, you'll see it's littered with the bodies of quarterbacks, players, and coaches who couldn't see eye to eye.

How about a guy who's not on the same page with reality?

Take hockey's Chicago Blackhawks star Patrick Kane, and believe, the 'Hawks right now wish you would. They have to issue a statement of support, that he's a big part of their organization and they stand behind him, but that's just PR nonsense. Right now he's a huge embarrassment.

What'd he do? He goes back home to Buffalo for some R&R and one night leaving a bar with his cousin they beat up a cab driver because he didn't have $.20 cents in change for them. They beat up the cabbie 'cause he didn't have $.20 cents in change. Remarkable. Yeah, remarkable for its stupidity.

Over Kane's first two years he scored 46 goals and 96 assists and in 2008 was awarded the Calder Trophy which is for outstanding rookie. He's 20 and his cousin is 21.

Yes, that's a lot of success to have at an early age with lots of money, like he's a millionaire, and lots of adoring fans, but c'mon. Think this says something about his character? Damn right it does. Hey, kid, get a grip. Hey, NHL, how about a major suspension?

What'd ya think of the new defensive hire for the Dallas Stars, Charlie Huddy? I think it's a great hire. Edmonton let him go in the off season because of a coaching staff change, so he came available. He was defensive coach for the Oilers the last nine seasons, and if you'll recall, they played some of their best defense.

I agree with the assessment that he is skilled at developing younger players, definitely more so than our just released Rick Wilson. Wilson did his job here, but I think he was better with the group that was already in long pants and not those still in knickers.

Of the young D men, Daley's certainly the best, but will need guidance in becoming more of a puck handler. Niskanen had his best year paired with Zubov but that was two years ago, and it appears Zubie is going to play back in his homeland Russia. Niskanen should be further along than he is for being the new defenseman with offensive skills, but he didn't show much improvement last season. Huddy can change that or determine if this is the best we get.

Fistic and Grossman are solid and tough, both are in prime positions to gain from new coaching. Hutchinson, Skrastins, and Vishnefskiy are really just coming in so we'll have to see what happens with them. It's been said that new head coach Crawford doesn't roll four lines as much as Tippet did. Hell, I didn't think Tip rolled 'em enough.

In this case with so many young D men, Crawford will probably limit ice time for the fourth line while they continue to learn, but I would hope that as/

Ok, so I'm sittin' here askin' myself the same question fans get me caught up in: why's there this off kilter argument about coaches? Like what their true worth to a team is?

Let's chase this dog around the yard a bit.

The question now becomes, just how can the average fan determine how important a coaching figure really is to a team? Yes, you can simply look at the wins and losses because a coach's presence influences those stats, but that picture is superficial to the whole answer.

Let's ask another question to see if we can get there.

Do the coaches serve the game, the players, or both? Heck yeah, you say, that's obvious. Sure 'tis. They develop a system and game plan, and help athletes to either develop or eliminate bad skills.

IF that makes sense, then why does it really irritates the snot out of fans when they don't see the benefit of what seems so obvious? Well, if you understand what a team should be trying to do to bring its coaches and players together, it's not so frustrating.

And what would that be, you ask?

Well, you keep hearing the comment about "being on the same page", but what does that really mean?

When a player and his coach both view the game if they get better that the ice time will increase. You play your top players for more minutes over 84 games it's gonna start wearing them down.

Huddy will be a great assistant coach for Crawford to work with for determining just what the younger guys are ready for, both play and time. Hey, I already think the D's gonna be better this year and for sure more exciting.

What about the Stars offense? Of course I'm just lookin' at thoughts free roamin' around the back of my own mind here, but I think the offense should be more effective and exciting with Crawford pushin' things.

The question here is IF the players themselves are excited about playing. You watch the really good teams, including the Stars of old, and the players were excited and exciting and brought it to the games. The fans can tell if the players aren't into it. This, I believe, is part of what made the decision for Hicks to fire the two headed GM machine and coaches. The players needed a new approach.

How do I think they'll stack up against the better teams this year? Well, we only get to face the defending Stanley Cup Champion Penguins once this year, Saturday March 6, 2010, in a nooner, at Pittsburgh, but it'll be a good game. I think we sneak up on the Pen's this year and steal one from 'em. WOOF.

How about those Texas Rangers? And folks, this time I'm not talkin' about the law enforcement guys. We're talkin' baseball and the fun these guys are havin'.

The deadly threesome of Hicks, Ryan, and Daniels have managed to fight their way past the urges to trade and upgrade, plus dump the malcontent Padilla, and this team is doing the improving it should be.

Maybe the Rangers decades' old reputation of collapsing the second half of any season keeps following them, and opponents just aren't taking them seriously. You can only believe that's what's been happening with the Rangers v Angels series. Texas has two more series to play against Los Angeles, do ya think they're gonna get to sneak up on 'em again?

That, or the Rangers have gotten themselves inside the LAA players heads and that's a great thing. Either way, the Rangers appear to be doing what opponents don't really want in a team they're facing: they're having fun.

Players having fun end up gaining confidence, play better, and shrug off bad plays. When you're typically a bad team and now you're playing significantly better ball and having fun, well, you're making it tough on those teams that are trying to do positioning for the playoffs.

It looks like the Rangers are spoiling some teams late season runs, which is funny, and it also looks like they're forcing teams to actually have to seriously play them, which screws up their preparations on pitching for the other, better, teams.

This season is huge to prepare them for next season. How they finish this year is going to have a great influence on next season. If we EXPECT not to just get into the playoffs next year, but to go deep, then how we close this year out is important. It wouldn't hurt if we could collect the wild card and get some post season work in, too.

Oh, all right, let's get to some NFL.

How 'bout that contract Seattle Seahawks rookie linebacker Aaron Curry got, 6 years for $60 million? $34 million of which is guaranteed.

I think contracts like this are not only absurd but an insult to the professionals who've suited up and played the game. You wanna give a rookie something like this, well, it's called a contract that's loaded with incentives. The owners and agents aren't thinking of the existing players at all. Besides, more players DON'T make it in the NFL than do.

Is Brandon Marshall with the Bronco's really getting tweaked regularly, enough so that he's missing some now considerable practice time? Or is BM merely continuing to stick it to new coach McDaniels?

Marshall's got an extremely valid point in being mad at Denver's medical staff. They totally missed the problem with Cutler, and it was so obvious that he had lost over 30 pounds and a visible deterioration of arm strength and accuracy but they couldn't see it. Of course Denver fans would be far better off if it'd been BM that had gotten traded and not Cutler. WOOF.

I think it's sad that Favre didn't go with the Vikings, I think it wudda been really exciting, especially the two times they faced the Pack. Now THOSE wudda been popcorn games. And beer. And wings. And whatever the hell else was good. If for no other reason than to get the chance to see the cheese melt down from those heads.

I don't get why Charles Haley hasn't been inducted into the NFL Hall of Fame? I mean like the guy was only the biggest stud of his time. Five Super Bowl appearances and five SB rings. What's the big deal they got to snub the man?

*Lomax
Corsicana*

Lomax:

To me the Hall of Fame should be more about an individual who had an actual impact on the game, which Haley sure did. I think there's pressure to nominate and select so many each year, so they get to statistics. Numbers don't tell the whole story, that's for sure. For example purposes only, Terrell Owens may catch or even pass Jerry Rice in numbers, but you would never be able to convince me that he had more of a (positive) impact on the game. Why isn't Haley in? Hey, it may be because he wasn't cooperative with the media. It may be "certain" people aren't sure just exactly what he might say or do. "They" would probably wet their pants if he charged the HOF like he did quarterbacks. I think he's one of the greats and his impact demands his inclusion.

What are the odds the Cowboys finally win a post season game this year? If they don't, what are the odds all the coaches are gone?

*Dillon

Dillon:

With no major injuries, I say the 'Boys will make the post season and win at least the first game. The coach's odds of surviving a non-playoff season? That deck is cut so thin there's only one side to it. TD

Two Dogs:

I was with some people that were talking hunting and the big argument was if supplemental feeding was nothing more than "baiting" for deer, and other game. I'm not sure if I really got what each side was saying, could you help clear the air for me?

*Lauren
Ft. Worth*

Lauren:

Good question. As opposed to laying bait to attract game, supplemental feeding is based on keeping the game, like deer, healthy. With the proper feed, like what's planted or fed to them, nutrition will help enhance deer's ability to fight disease, etc. The people trying to keep the game healthy insist this is not baiting but to keep the game's survivability and propagation high. The argument from the outside would be that it's basic behavior modification and the deer start becoming conditioned to going to certain areas for food, thus when hunting season comes back around, they're "trained" to come back. Maybe the intention of supplemental feeding is the general overall health of the deer, but the deer don't know that so they just keep coming back. That is conditioning them to return for food, and that process is baiting.

These contract holdouts bug the crap outta me. Where's their loyalty?

Apparently some play for the love of the game while in high school, then use college as a farm team for the pros, and then do the pro's only for the money.

Lamarama: Actor Lorenzo Lamas Launches New Motorcycle Company

Lorenzo Lamas, everybody's favorite Bold and Beautiful Renegade from the 1990s, has announced a new motorcycle company named, imaginatively enough, Lorenzo Lamas Cycles. Just as Steven Tyler did when he decided to get into the custom motorcycle scene, Lamas contacted an established builder, in this case Ralph Randolph of Knockout Motorcycles, to actually engineer and assemble the machines.

So far, LLC has released four motorcycle renderings, two of which – the Reno Rocket and the Badlands Bomber – are slated for a public debut this week at the Sturgis Motorcycle Rally. All of LLC's machines seem to be based on production frames and will reportedly be equipped with Twin Cam engines from S&S and tires from Avon.

U.S. Department of Transportation Release Most Purchased, Most Traded Vehicles Under CARS Program

Although the future of the United State's cash for clunker program is still up in the air, the CARS program managed to move 250,000 vehicles during the week it was up and running. Now that the final tallies are in, the U.S. Department of Transportation has released the most purchased and most traded-in vehicles under the program.

As previously reported, the Ford Focus currently owns the title of most purchased vehicle under the CARS program. The Toyota Corolla follows the Focus in the number 2 spot, with the Honda Civic rounding out the top 3.

The Toyota Prius is currently in the fourth spot but could have been ranked higher had it not been for a supplier issue. The fuel-efficient Prius remains in hot demand – with wait lists now extending for months – but a battery supply issue has put a cap on total output. The Camry is Toyota's third and final nameplate on the top 10 list, checking in at the 5th spot.

The Ford Escape is holding on to the #6 spot and is the only SUV to make the CARS' top 10 list. The Hyundai Elantra, Dodge Caliber, Honda Fit and Chevrolet Cobalt fill out the rest of the top 10 list.

Not surprisingly, trucks and SUVs dominate the most traded list, with the only exceptions being two minivans. The four-wheel drive version of the Ford Explorer topped the clunkers list, with its two-wheel drive counterpart filling the #7 spot. The two-wheel drive Ford F-150 captured the 2nd spot, with its four-wheel drive counterpart taking the #8 spot.

John Cusack Rides Can-Am Spyder Across Ireland

Irish-American actor John Cusack recently completed a tour of Ireland on a Can-Am Spyder roadster.

The star of such films as Runaway Jury, High Fidelity and Grosse Pointe Blank was in Ireland for his grandmother's 80th birthday. After the celebrations, Cusack hopped on his Spyder and toured Ireland with his family, visiting places such as Dublin, Kenmare and Galway.

"Ireland is a beautiful country and I have been amazed by the history and scenery," says Cusack. "The Spyder roadster is best experienced in open countryside and Ireland offered the perfect opportunity."

"The Spyder is all about speed, power, control and freedom. When I bought mine I discovered it was so easy to operate and maneuver and by the end of the day it was like I had been riding for years."

iPhone Passion Application To Score Orgasms

Most iPhone users would probably describe them as sexy. But now they can even get their gadgets to tell them how good they are in bed.

The Passion application uses the phone's motion sensors and microphone to monitor proceedings during sex and then calculates a score.

Users simply start the programme - presumably after saying a few romantic words to their love one - strap the phone to their arm and press stop when finished. The software gives ratings from 'bad' to 'perfect' based on three criteria - duration, activity and orgasm.

Duration is counted by the phone's timer, activity by its 'accelerometer' motion sensor and orgasm via the microphone.

Armed with their score, users can then go online to upload their results and compare themselves with other digital Casanovas around the world. Passion has been developed by self-taught 'webmaster' Chris Alvares, who also came up with the quiz-based applications Music App, Four Squared and WikiQuiz.

The developer, who is studying computer science at Texas University, said: 'This application uses all of the iPhone's features to measure how passionate you can be with your loved one.'

'Just put your iPhone in your pocket or an arm-band and start Passion. After you are finished, it will calculate a score between zero and ten.' No one has yet worked out if the results can be faked...

QuakeCon To Unveil Rage & Brink

The Texas gaming event will feature the first public demonstrations of id's Rage and Bethesda's Brink

Id software has confirmed the lineup for the 2009 QuakeCon. The Gaylord Texan Hotel in Dallas will host North America's biggest free LAN party, with all manner of events to enter and prizes up for grabs.

The con will also feature a keynote speech by John Carmack, as well as a press conference by id and a presentation by Bethesda's Todd Howard. The recently launch Rage website www.aftertheimpact.com has been hinting for a few weeks that more details on the game were going to emerge at the Con, although no details have been forthcoming - we'll expect the game will be running on a PC rig considering the audience, but also due to the recent controversy surrounding the respective framerates of the Xbox 360 and PS3 versions of the game.

Quakecon is this weekend August 13 - 16. For more info check the website at <http://www.quakecon.org>.

Best Man Allegedly Raped By Stripper At Bachelor Party

The Melbourne trial of a stripper accused of violating the best man at a bachelor party with a strap-on pink dildo will decide the crucial issue of deliberate penetration against the unusual suggestion of possible "accidental rape".

A County Court jury was yesterday told to approach their task free of sympathy, emotion or bias and to put views of strippers and bachelor parties "out of your mind".

Prosecutor Kieran Gilligan told the jury they had to be satisfied there was penetration, if even slight, that it was deliberate, without consent and that Linda Marree Naggs, 40, knew the man was not consenting.

But Naggs' barrister, Paul Higham, asked the jury to have "in the back of your mind" issues of male sexuality and pride, fear, ego and peer group pressure.

He said if there was penetration it was accidental and he asked what led the man to "place himself in proximity to the dildo", which he described as "arguably statuesque".

Naggs, who has pleaded not guilty, is alleged to have thrust the dildo into the man's anus during a naked XXX-rated show in a house in Mornington on September 24, 2007.

Mr Gilligan told the jury that the man had replaced the groom and another volunteer who were reluctant to continue their involvement with Naggs. He said after she did a lap dance, rubbed her breasts in his face and used the dildo on herself, he asked her: "Be gentle. Don't do it too hard."

"No worries," Mr Gilligan said Naggs replied.

When the man, who was on all fours and naked from the knees up, asked her not to go near his anus, she allegedly said: "Not a problem. Relax. It's only fun. I won't go there."

But Mr Gilligan said that soon after Naggs applied cream or lubricant to his buttocks, he felt a sharp pain, a thrust and the dildo "go right into his anal passage".

He said the man was hurt and shocked and after Naggs allegedly told him not to worry because "only you and I know", he said: "What the f--- did you do that for, you stupid bitch."

Mr Gilligan said the man complained to police later that day while a medical examination showed a small abrasion below his anal verge "most likely caused by blunt trauma".

Mr Higham submitted that if there was penetration it was accidental so "this is a case, if you like, of accidental rape".

He described the facts as unique, involving a working mother and professional dancer of 13 years.

Want A Good Night's Sleep? Have Sex,

Say Doctors

Sex before bedtime is one of the best ways to guarantee a good night's sleep, a survey of doctors has revealed.

But, on a less romantic note, the medics also recommended sleeping in separate beds was the best solution to ensure couples enjoyed undisturbed, quality sleep.

One in six doctors quizzed for the survey backed the sex before bedtime approach, with 38 per cent recommending separate beds.

Doctors aged 55 and over were the greatest believers in sex as a way to aid restful sleep.

Primary Care Physician Dr Patricia McNair says: "With just 21 per cent of the population getting the recommended eight hours of sleep a night, it is vital that the time spent in bed is as restful as possible.

"Sleep is a fundamental part of our wellbeing, affecting us in many ways including energy levels, concentration and mood.

"I recommend that people take steps to make sleep more of a priority in their life and take action to address problems that regularly disturb their sleep."

The survey of 400 British doctors was carried out by Crampex, who produce a treatment for muscle cramp.

Like a little sex with that haircut?

Guys were getting shaved, all right. But not the way you think. They were pouring into B's Barber Shop in Cape Coral but coming out with the same untrimmed hair, reports the Fort Myers News Press.

Cops finally arrested the two brothers who owned the shop.

Walter Alexander Barragan, 24, who once trained to be a Cape Coral police officer, and Alfonso Barragan III, 25, are accused of having sex with two underage females. But that's not all.

They were offering them for prostitution in the massage room of the now-shuttered barbershop.

The Barragans' undoing came when a suspect in an unrelated drug case told police he had videos on his cell phone showing Alfonso Barragan and the two girls having sex. The suspect also said he saw the brothers having sex with one of the minors in a bathroom, police said.

To entice business, two bikini-clad women in their early 20s held signs in front of the shop advertising haircuts.

A sign in the window also offered "free beer with a haircut," said Elliott Bowie, 17, who lives near the barbershop and often rides his bicycle past there. He said they also advertised that "we have X Box" video game consoles.

Bowie said he always saw several men sitting outside drinking beer and yelling at him to "get a haircut."

So that's what they call it now.

Pulse to Distribute Hardcore Edition of '2009 AVN Awards'

Pulse Distribution has set an August 11 street date for its Special Collector's Hardcore Edition of the 2009 AVN Awards Show. The two-disc set includes exclusive, behind-the-scenes footage, red carpet coverage, and 12 award-winning sex scenes presented in their entirety.

"The reason why the AVN Awards 2009 DVD is special this year is that AVN decided to focus on the sex—namely the sex scenes from the movies that won," said Hyland Church, VP of sales for Pulse Distribution. "The DVD is jam-packed with award-winning action. Want to see an incredible sex scene from Vivid's Cry Wolf, winner of the Best Film award this year? It's in here. Want to see a hot sex scene from Wicked's Fallen? It's in here too—plus 10 other scenes and plenty of backstage fun."

Often referred to as the "Oscars of Porn," the AVN Awards Show continues to reach past the reliable porn fan demographic. Along with national media coverage, the 2009 AVN Awards made its world broadcast debut in April on the Showtime cable network.

Hosted by Belladonna, Jenna Haze, and comedienne Thea Vidale, the 26th annual ceremony brought fans and media from around the world to the Mandalay Bay Events Center in Las Vegas on Jan. 10 to honor the best in hardcore adult entertainment.

"People want to see award-winning sex, and that's what we've captured here," Church said. "If you didn't get to see the show—or the movies that were nominated—here's your chance."

The AVN Awards 2009 DVD includes scenes from Buttwoman (Elegant Angel), Girlvana 4 (Zero Tolerance), Fallen (Wicked Pictures), Cry Wolf (Vivid Entertainment), Ashlynn Goes to College (New Sensations), Icon (SexZ Pictures), Cheerleaders and Pirates 2: Stagnetti's Revenge (Digital Playground).

Also featured on the DVD are appearances by such starlets as Jesse Jane, Alexis Texas, Kayden Kross, Riley Steele, Monique Alexander, Ashlynn Brooke, and AVN Best New Starlet Stoya.

Jenna, Playboy, PETA and Mickey D's

Jenna Jameson will make Playboy fans happy, but she's likely to tick off stockholders in the golden arches in a new PETA ad.

According to that bastion of journalistic authority, Fox News, Jameson—back in sex-goddess shape after recently giving birth to twin boys—did a shoot for Playboy Thursday night in Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, Jameson has also shot a PSA for PETA's new McCruelty campaign, targeting McDonald's and its Chicken McNugget processing in particular.

In the 30-second spot due the fall, Jameson lashes out at Mickey D's: "Chickens killed for McNuggets are slammed into metal shackles. Spinning blades meant to cut their throats often tear through their wings or bodies instead," she says. "Many birds survive this terrifying, painful process, only to be scalded to death in defeathering tanks. There's a less cruel method of slaughter that renders chickens unconscious, but McDonald's chooses to allow birds to be mutilated and scalded instead."

Pleasure Items Going to the Dogs

Considering there is no real canine equivalent to Adult Friend Finder, it seems it was only a matter of time before someone figured out a way for Fido to relieve his sexual frustrations.

At least two companies—designer Clement Eloy of France's FeelAddicted (HotDoll) and Petsmiling in Brazil (DoggieLoveDoll)—have developed love dolls for dogs. Yes, there are people creating sex toys for pets.

Each of the items is plastic, and bears a resemblance to a dog form. And each has a hole in the back so your pup can get it on with his new mate.

Both companies say the dolls were designed to help pets who are left alone for long periods of time cope with the separation anxiety. The also reportedly work well for animals in heat or those who display dominance through humping.

All we want to know is, can we use the separation anxiety excuse for the next human love doll we order for home?

For more information, visit FeelAddicted.com or DoggieLoveDoll.com.

Porn Industry Musical in the Works

A new musical on the adult entertainment industry, based on real-life stories of the people who work in the industry, is currently being developed by two theater groups.

New York's experimental group The Civilians and Los Angeles' Center Theatre Group are seeking people willing to be interviewed for the still-untitled show. There is no opening date for the musical. The piece, being written by Bess Wohl with music by Michael Friedman, is being developed under CTG's New Play Production Program.

"The creative team will go behind the scenes and learn about the human side of this business, looking at the work and lives of directors, performers, producers, crew—everyone with a story to tell," reads a blog entry for The Civilians.

For more information on the musical, visit TheCivilians.org

'The X-Files' Remade As Porn Film'

A porn film parodying TV show The X-Files is reportedly in the works.

The New Sensation production will feature the characters of Mulder (David Duchovny) and Scully (Gillian Anderson), who investigated supernatural events on the popular cult sci-fi show, replaced by adult film stars.

The actress hired for Anderson's role is reported to be a spitting image of the 40-year-old, Contactmusic reports.

"Fans will be amazed. We'll have to dye our Scully's hair - but she's a dead ringer," a source said.

The plot for The X-Files - A Dark XXX Parody has not been divulged in its entirety. However, the insider said that the picture will include "a mass orgy sex scene with cult members" and "a threesome in an alley".

Here's something new for you porn fiends. Just like some of us like our girls small and petite, some like them big and round. If that's you then you'll love this new big, black, beautiful woman release from West Coast Production. I wish my buddy Little Chris was around. All he talks about is big girls which I find funny cause he's barely over five feet and 120 pounds.

The fine ladies on this release are Shonta Cashay, Farrah Foxx, Simone Starxxx, Shana, Lady Finesse and a bonus scene with white BBW star Jody Breeze.

Damn, never been one for huge breast but after seeing the tit job Lady Finesse and Simone Starxxx gave, I'm thinking I need more variety.

Didn't really like the other ladies, but like I said not my fetish. 3 out 5, cause I kind of like Jody Breeze from the bonus scene. -Gil Tha Thrill

MILF To The Max #2 Adam & Eve Pictures

I love these MILF compilations from Adam & Eve. On this second volume of MILF To The Max, you get 4 hours of nonstop MILF action from some of Adam & Eve's earlier released, which were all new to me.

I think I might be a little old to love my MILFs though and might have to switch to GILF or barely legal.

Anyway, with these 4 hour comps it's really hard for me to view every scene, but I did scan through them all and I was pretty damn happy with most of the scenes. There's lots of blondes, some brunettes and a few of my favorites, red heads.

Cover girls Nina Hartley and Kristal Summers are very deserving of the cover. Nina's scene with Evan Stone shows why she got so popular in the nineties, as she rides Evan like no other lady has. Kristal Summers reminds of this hot, tanned MILF I used to work with. I don't think my ex co-worker would have screwed like Kristal though.

Hottest scene and MILF, goes to Victoria Givens and her scene from Over Thirty and Dirty. That's a kickass title. I wish she would have been my friends mom when I was in high school. Plus I love her wild curly hair.

The only bad thing about this comp was that the scene title and actress name come up too fast to read, but that's minor. This low price four hour long comp deserves to be in your porn stash! 4 out 5. -Gil Tha Thrill

"Jack's Teen America 23" is full of horny girls who won't settle for second place!

Fox Holes Third Degree Films

"Girls Only" is the theme for this masterpiece, as these horny bitches LOVE pussy! Pussy grinding, cunt lapping, finger f*cking and face sitting is just some of the action that leaves panties soaking! So don't run, duck or take cover when these beautiful lesbo tramps attack! FOX HOLES jump on in!

Bad Idea: Creepy Surgical Masks For Dentists

Clever surgical masks with funny cartoon mouths were sent to dentists in Hamburg, Germany. The goal was to lighten up a visit to the dentist for the kids and everyone else, as well as to promote Colgate Smiles Kids toothbrushes. I think it might help scare them into better brushing, so they won't have to visit the doctor.

Autopsy: Cocaine Contributed To Billy Mays' Death

An autopsy report shows that cocaine use contributed to the heart disease that suddenly killed TV pitchman Billy Mays in June, officials announced Friday.

The Hillsborough County medical examiner's office previously determined that the bearded, boisterous TV spokesman had a heart attack in his sleep. His wife found him unresponsive in bed in their Tampa condo June 28.

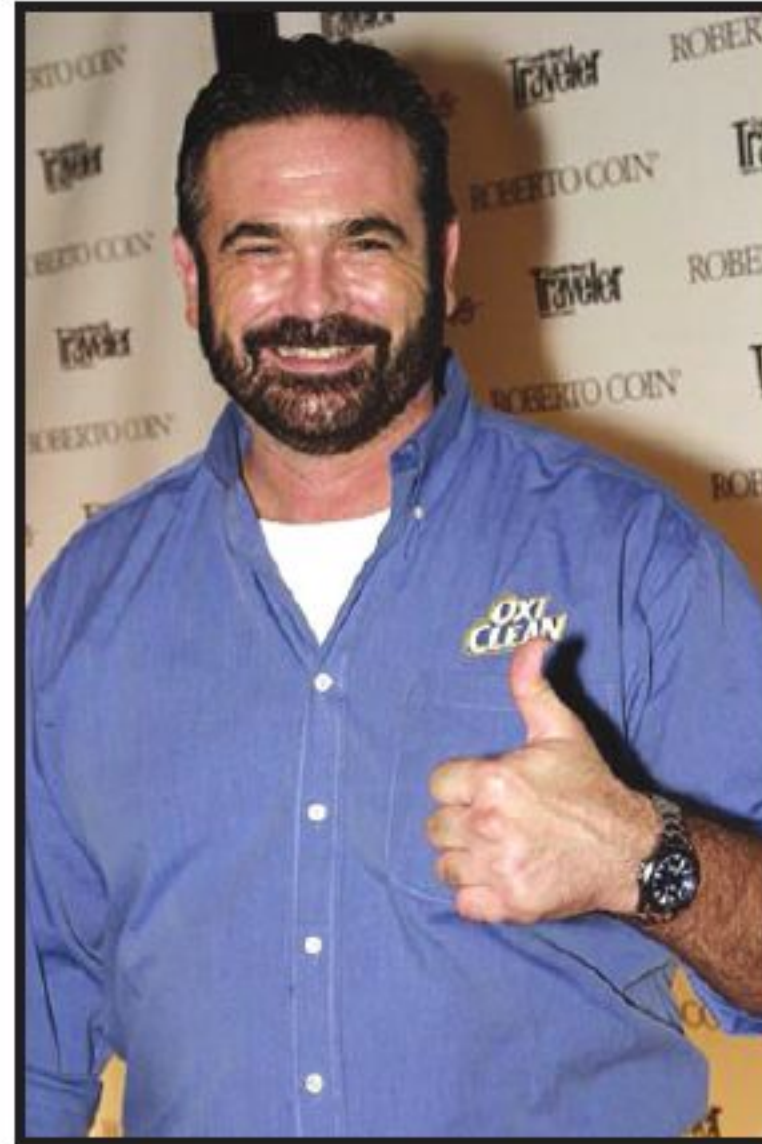

Mays was a pop-culture fixture with his energetic commercials pitching gadgets and cleaning products like Orange Glo and OxiClean.

While heart disease was the primary cause of death, a report released Friday by the medical examiner listed cocaine as a "contributory cause of death."

The medical examiner "concluded that cocaine use caused or contributed to the development of his heart disease, and thereby contributed to his death," the office said in a press release.

The office said Mays last used cocaine in the few days before his death but was not under the influence of the drug when he died. Hillsborough County spokeswoman Lori Hudson said nothing in the toxicology report indicated the frequency of Mays' cocaine use.

Cocaine can raise the arterial blood pressure, directly cause thickening of the left wall of the ventricle and accelerate the formation of atherosclerosis in the coronary arteries, the release said.

The toxicology tests also showed therapeutic amounts of painkillers hydrocodone, oxycodone and tramadol, as well as anti-anxiety drugs alprazolam and diazepam. Mays had suffered hip problems and was scheduled for hip-replacement surgery the day after he was found dead.

The McKees Rocks, Pa., native developed his style demonstrating knives, mops and other "As Seen on TV" gadgets on Atlantic City's boardwalk. For years he worked as a hired gun on the state fair and home show circuits, attracting crowds with his booming voice and genial manner.

He got his start on TV on the Home Shopping Network and then branched out into commercials and infomercials. He developed such a strong following that he became the subject of a reality TV series, Discovery Channel's "Pitchmen."

Cheating Husband Penis Glued To Belly

A Cheating hubby had his manhood glued to his stomach by his lovers - in an ambush set up by his wife. Tracy Hood-Davis plotted revenge with the women after discovering her husband's affairs.

The randy dad was lured to a motel by mistress Therese Ziemann, 47. He let her blindfold and tie him up, then another lover Wendy Sewell, 44, and Ziemann's sister Michelle Belliveau, 43, burst in.

They squirted superglue on his privates, before Ziemann allegedly threatened to shoot him. The women fled with his wallet and car in Chilton, Wisconsin.

He eventually broke free after chewing through one of his bindings before escaping the room and calling the police.

All three women and wife Tracy have been arrested. Her hubby was treated in hospital.

Prosecutors said they could face up to six years in jail.

Ziemann told detectives she met the man online through Craigslist. She said she fell in love with him, paid for hotel rooms and had given him $3,000.

But last Wednesday she found out the man was married and teamed up with the other women to carry out the revenge plot.

1. Social Networking scams

Fraudsters hack a social networking account, such as Facebook, Twitter, MySpace, or Bebo, and then contact friends and family of claiming that they are in trouble and need money to be sent immediately to a specified address.

2. Prediction scams

This scam arrives in the form of an e-mail that provides the results of a football game taking place the following day, at no cost. The next day the receiver discovers that the prediction is true. Over the next couple of weeks further e-mails are sent providing results that also turn out to be correct.

Following a number of e-mails, another one is sent offering the recipient the chance to buy the results of future games for a hefty sum. The trick is that most of the people who received e-mails would have had a wrong result and so fallen out of the process. But statistically, a small proportion of all the people involved would have received e-mails with the correct results each time.

3. Economy-related scams

Prying on those in financial trouble, these scams can be performed via internet, telephone or post and include a range of financial help and offers such as loan and debt consolidation, fix-your-credit-rating, repossession assistance, phoney advance loans and mortgage foreclosure rescue schemes.

4. "It's me" scam

This is a scam that has been prevalent in Asia but is now being seen in the West. The fraudster calls an elderly person declaring that their granddaughter has been in a road accident. Cries for help are screamed down the phone line and the fraudster informs the person that money needs to be sent immediately to cover the medical costs.

5. The "offer you can't refuse"

This involves the sale of a product for which the fraudster provides an over-payment in the form of a cashier's cheque, usually stolen, and asks for the excess to be transferred back. This can also occur when targets are offered a job, for example, to earn 20% commission. They receive a £10,000 cheque and are then asked to deposit it and return £8,000. The cheque later bounces, by which time the £8,000 is already in the hands of the bad guys.

6. Unauthorised billing group

Many technologies and industries are exploited by this scam, whereby a fraudulent company or service continues to charge an account without the owner's consent. This also includes online suggestions for limited trials or "verification only" of cards and then charging more than mentioned at the beginning. Most banks, however, will return the money to the account.

7. "Man-in-the-phone" scams

Man-in-the-phone scams use deception and trickery during a telephone conversation to persuade an individual to divulge information. The fraudster phones someone and informs them that there has been a security risk on their account. The fraudster then conference calls in the real bank, whose representative asks for the secret information. Since it's the real bank with the real account information, the individual often answers the security questions, then provides all bank details, while the fraudster eavesdrops in the background.

8. E-mails containing Trojans

Another e-mail scam is promotional offers, especially ones for anti-spyware solutions. These can include links or attachments infected with Trojans that record keyboard strokes and attempt to steal sensitive details such as passwords etc.

9. Fake escrow services

This is a scam that is growing more common on eBay and other online auctions. Legitimate escrow services act as a third-party go-between: buyers send money to the escrow company, which holds the funds until the seller delivers the merchandise. However, fraudsters are commonly setting up fake ones to con buyers as well as sellers.

10. Phishing scams

This is probably the most common form of fraud and it is still as common and as successful as when it was introduced. Masquerading as a legitimate organisation, usually in the form of an e-mail announcing a bank account or PayPal security breach, the fraudster attempts to acquire bank details, passwords, or login details, often via a spoof website.

Mexican Oysters

A big Texan stopped at a local restaurant following a day roaming around in Mexico.

While sipping his tequila, he noticed a sizzling, scrumptious looking platter being served at the next table. Not only did it look good, the smell was wonderful.

He asked the waiter, 'What is that you just served?'

The waiter replied, 'Ah senior, you have excellent taste! Those are called Cojones de Toro, bull's testicles from the bull fight this morning. A delicacy!'

The cowboy said, 'What the heck, bring me an order.'

The waiter replied, 'I am so sorry senior. There is only one serving per day because there is only one bull fight each morning. If you come early and place your order, we will be sure to save you this delicacy.'

The next morning, the cowboy returned, placed his order, and that evening was served the one and only special delicacy of the day. After a few bites, inspecting his platter, he called to the waiter and said, 'These are delicious, but they are much, much smaller than the ones I saw you serve yesterday.'

The waiter shrugged his shoulders and replied, 'Si, Senior... Sometimes the bull wins.'

IT'S HARD TO FIND A GOOD DONKEY SHOW

The Weekly Adventures Of OJ Tobias

After my rear ending I got out of the hoosegow and went home. It was time to spend some quality time with my kid. Haven't seen him in weeks since the whole "divorce and you need supervised visitation thing," so I went and check him out of day care the old fashioned way. I jumped the fence and told all the kids I was a boogie man. Those little shits are I smarter than I thought.

"You're not the boogiemani," a little disrespectful 8 year old spouted.

"I am the fk, too!" I said in a meanie voice.

"Are not." I could see this was going nowhere fast.

"Am, too!" (Take that you little shit, I thought. I have played this game before.)

"Are not!" Damn, this little fker seems to have played this before, I thought.

"Am motherfking, too!" I screamed and pushed his little ass down. I wanted to end this shit.

He hit the ground on his ass, like a little kid. What a pussy. Then he started that crying shit.

"Hey, grow a pair and get over that fence!" I demanded.

"But Dad, I don't want to go. I want to stay here with my friends."

"Stop watching Judge Judy everyday. That bitch is crazy!" I told him. But I really love her. I never miss an episode. I wonder if I could get her to represent me in a civil case...? It would be a new thing for me. The whole criminal shit is old hat these days.

Finally, after a 12 pack, we reached our destination. The Dinosaur Valley State Park in Glen Rose, Texas.

My brat was all like, "Cool, dinosuar tracks!"

"Hellyeah, those big fkers are leaving trackseverywhere. Howlonghaveyouknownaboutthisplace?"

"Our class came here last year, I told you about it when you were at the Special Olympics in Vegas."

"Well, good." I said as I popped the trunk and loaded my trusty 12 gauge. "Where do they keep those fking dinosaurs? Iain'tneverhadnoT-Rexmeat."

Well, the boy would not tell me and he started that crying shit again when I helped him put on his pork chop vest I made for him. Kids are just fking spoiled these days. What's wrong with carrying bait during a hunting trip?

Well, the dinosaur park does not have one fking dinosaur, which is bullshit. They are not even in Glen Rose-- they are not in county, either. The reason I know is because DPS troopers showed up when I was warming up the 12 gauge. You should never hunt with a cold gun. You could get hurt.

So after all that, I got my little brat in the car. The whole time he was trying to explain visitation and prison and the law. I felt like I was in the car with some first time convict.

I figured my ex called them to end my visit. But they were all like, "You're an idiot!" I am starting to think that phrase is a new part of the Miranda Warning.

Ask Dr. Zamra "Metro's Sexy Scientist"

Dr. Zamra,
I keep hearing about typoons and hurricanes lately. What's the difference between a Typhoon and a Hurricane?
Confused Weather Channel Lover

It is confusing, and pretty darn silly, that the weather service uses 2 different names for the same thing! Hurricanes and Typhoons both start out as Tropical Depressions until their winds reach 39mph. Then they are upgraded to Tropical Storms and assigned names. Once the wind crosses the 74mph mark they are official Tropical Cyclones and in the US are rated on the Saffir-Simpson Scale as a Catagory 1-5.

The only difference in Typhoons and Hurricanes is where they are located. In the US Hurricanes occur to the East and Typhoons claim the West side. I guess the people in charge want to make it super apparent which coast these storms are in in their names so people don't needlessly freak out.

I could bore you with some more delightful weather stats but I'll sign off now. This is reminding me of when I worked at FEMA and pretty much ate, breathed, and slept Hurricanes and Typhoons!
Ugh....

Did I Ever Tell You The One About... And other strange oddities of the world

Florida Inmates Make, Sell Their Own Hot Sauce

A group of Tampa inmates is offering a taste of what it's like jail — no locks, bars or handcuffs required. But you'd better have a tough stomach to use more than a dash of their "Jailhouse Fire Hot Sauce." Minimum-security Hillsborough County Jail inmates offer it in "Original," "Smoke" and "No Escape" varieties, all made from their jail-grown peppers.

They came up with the recipe and started selling it in 2005. Since then, horticulture instructor Allen Boatman estimates they've made $10,000 on the sauce. Each bottle is $7.

The income is used to keep up the greenhouse and buy basic supplies.

Chinese Bride Trains Eye On Wedding Dress Record

A Chinese bride is hoping to enter the record books after getting married in a wedding dress with a train more than 2 km (1.2 miles) long trailing behind her.

It took guests more than three hours to roll out the gown, complete with 9,999 silk red roses attached to it, in the northeastern province of Jilin, state news agency Xinhua said.

"Both the length of the dress and the number silk roses pinned on the wedding dress can make history," the report quoted groom Zhao Peng as saying.

Zhao, who has applied to Guinness World Records, said he was inspired after seeing a story on the previous record holder in Romania, where the dress measured just over 1.5 km.

Bride Lin Rong "laughed and cried at the romantic gesture," Xinhua said.

The dress cost around 40,000 yuan ($5,856), which prompted initial opposition to the plan from his family.

"It is a waste of money in my opinion," said Zhao's mother. "Though I understand that he wants to show his love on the big day."

Obese Texas Inmate Hides Gun In His Flabs Of Fat

An obese inmate in Texas has been charged after officials learned he had a gun hidden under flabs of his own flesh.

Twenty-five-year-old George Vera was charged with possession of a firearm in a correctional facility after he told a guard at the Harris County Jail about the unloaded 9mm pistol. The Houston Chronicle reported Thursday that Vera was originally arrested on charges of selling illegal copies of compact discs.

The 500-pound man was searched during his arrest and again at a city jail and the county jail, but officers never found the weapon in his rolls of skin. Vera admitted having the gun during a shower break at the county jail.

Widows Protest Marriage Incentive

About 200 women marched through the Nepali capital Monday to denounce a government scheme to pay cash incentives to men for marrying widows, witnesses said.

Nepal's center-left coalition announced a plan last month to pay men the equivalent of $650 for marrying widows, angering the widows.

Monday, women shouting slogans such as "You can't sell your mother," and "We don't want government dowries," marched toward a government complex that houses the prime minister's office.

Durga Neupane, an organizer and a widow, said activists would mobilize widows throughout the Himalayan nation if the government failed to scrap the decision by Friday.

The government says the scheme seeks to help widows who face social and cultural barriers in a majority-Hindu society.

But Neupane said it would only add to their woes as men would marry widows for money and later abandon them. Widows, she said, should instead be given jobs, better health care and education.

Police Say Suspect Was Caught By His Own Seat Belt

Authorities said a purse snatching suspect being chased by police near Detroit got his right leg tangled in his car's seat belt when he tried to bail out and ended up being dragged several hundred feet. Police told the Detroit Free Press and The Macomb Daily of Mount Clemens that 45-year-old man Lawrence Neal of Detroit was dragged Thursday night and broke his leg before the car stopped on a front lawn.

During the chase, police said Neal used turn signals. And Detective Lt. Leo Borowsky said he was "captured by his own seat belt."

Neal was being held at the Macomb County Jail. He was charged with unarmed robbery, fleeing and eluding and resisting and obstructing police.

Boy Drinks Gas To Become Transformer

A Chinese boy was left seriously ill after drinking gas to try and turn himself into a Transformer robot.

Xiao Fang of Xingwen in eastern China reportedly drank the gas in secret while he was eating food in the belief that it would give him powers of robotic superheroes, the Telegraph reports. It was unclear just how much gas the boy drank.

The 9-year-old suffered serious nerve damage from ingesting the petrol. His doctors said they were amazed that he was able to keep the toxic liquid down.

Xiao Fang's parents said they became suspicious when their home began to smell like gas.

News, Rumors and Gossip

Rob Newbiggin, Boxer From Britain, To Undergo Sex-Change Operation

Boxer Rob Newbiggin has decided to undergo a sex change operation. Rob Newbiggin has revealed to a number of media outlets that he was born with the physical characteristics of a man, but due to high levels of estrogen (a female hormone) in his body, his gender could not be classified as a man or woman. Rob Newbiggin says that he was born "intersexual" in the United States in 1964 and abandoned by his South American parents. After living in a number of foster homes, he was finally adopted by a Canadian couple.

Rob Newbiggin says that since revealing his plans to undergo a sex-change operation, he has been abandoned by many of his friends and has decided to move out of Southport - a town that he loves - because it has become too emotionally uncomfortable for him to continue to live there. He is deeply saddened by his friends' lack of support and understanding.

Once Rob Newbiggin's sex change operation is complete (he will have to take female hormones and undergo a psychological evaluation before surgery) he hopes to get a license to continue boxing as a woman. When the transformation is complete, he will go by the name Mercedes.

Fort Worth Considers Transgender Protections

The city of Fort Worth, Texas is considering an ordinance that would ban discrimination based on gender identity, gay weekly the Dallas Voice reported.

The city's Human Relations Commission voted July 28 to amend the city's anti-discrimination policy to include transgender protections. All eleven members voted in favor of the recommendation.

The commission's recommendation must now be approved by the city's Diversity Task Force before City Council will consider the measure.

If passed, the ordinance would prohibit discrimination against transgender people in the areas of employment, housing, and places of public accommodation.

The move has been under consideration for nearly a year, Lisa Thomas, a Human Rights Commission member, told the paper: "The commission has been working on this issue since before I joined more than a year ago."

"At our March meeting, members of the transgender community spoke to the commission, telling the commissioners about their lives and the issues and discrimination they encounter trying to live their lives," Thomas said.

"Those citizen presentations were informative and very moving," she added.

Professional Associations Back Gay Marriage

Both the National Education Association (NEA) and the American Bar Association (ABA) have adopted resolutions backing GLBT rights, including the right of gay and lesbian couples to marry.

At its annual meeting in Chicago last week, the ABA policy-making House of Delegates passed a resolution that calls on lawmakers to repeal Section 3 of the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA). Delegates approved the measure without debate with an overwhelming voice vote.

Section 3 of DOMA bars federal agencies from recognizing legal gay marriages.

"This is a very modest recommendation, some would even say a conservative recommendation," Estelle Rogers, a lawyer who is a consultant on civil rights, told ABA Journal.

While the resolution's summary says the recommendation is neutral on the subject of granting gays the right to marry, it does go on to call DOMA "unfair."

"The enactment of DOMA Section 3 has deprived thousands of lawfully married same-sex spouses of the range of federal protections they would otherwise receive, making it difficult for them to provide for one another and subjecting them to financial hardship and uncertainty," the resolution says.

Last month, in San Diego, the NEA's governing body also approved a raft of pro-gay resolutions.

Without naming the legislation, the NEA voiced its support for repeal of DOMA, passage of the Employment Non-Discrimination Act (ENDA), a bill currently before Congress that would ban employment discrimination based on sexual orientation or gender identity, the Domestic Partnership Benefits and Obligations Act, a bill that would extend health-care and retirement benefits to the gay and lesbian spouses of federal employees, and the Uniting American Families Act (UFAA), a bill that would allow gay and lesbian Americans to sponsor an immigrant partner for citizenship.

The NEA also said it would "support its affiliates seeking to enact state legislation that guarantees to same-sex couples the right to enter into a legally recognized relationship," then added that "each state decide for itself whether 'marriage,' 'civil union,' 'domestic partnership,' or some other term is most appropriate."

Another item said the association opposes gay marriage bans.

And finally, the NEA said it supports the right of religious institutions to refuse to "perform or recognize same-sex marriages."

Monthly Mag vs. Weekly Mag (Your Advertising Dollar) hmmm....say a Monthly prints 15,000 copies for the Month and is picked up 1 time.
A Weekly prints 18,000 copies per Week 4 times that's 72,000 per Month.

15,000 vs 72,000: You do the Math.
WHY PAY WEEKLY? Because YOU make more MONEY!!!

Why Make Money once a Month.
When you can make MONEY every WEEK!!!
